MORNING SESSION.

As soon as the President had taken the chair there was great confusion created by several gentlemen endeavoring to get the floor.

After the reading of the Journal, the proceedings were opened with prayer by Rev. Mr. Cantwell, of [illegible]

Mr. [illegible], of New-York, presented the following [illegible] against Brother Thomas H. Ford, of [illegible]

[illegible]—During the political campaign, in the Fall of 1855, he visited the State of New-York, and used all his efforts to secure the nomination of the Black Republican and Foreign Parties, whose principles are antagonistic to those of the Democratic Party.

[illegible] as a subsisting member of this Council, on the same ground as that of 1855, he is not entitled to a seat with us at this time.

Resolved—That he is now in contradiction with the Black Republican and Foreign Party, and pledged to use his influence and exertions to defeat the nomination of Brother Ford, and to rally all the friends he can command to favor the Fitzhugh Black Republican Convention, which is to meet on Friday the 22d, at this place.

Mr. [illegible], of New-York, moved that the Council adjourn sine die. He had no hope that there would be any action on the question before the Council. Gentlemen were here prepared to violate the Order of Degree, and there was no use attempting to organize.

Cries of "No, no," and "We'll do the right thing yet."

Finally, and after a great deal of confusion, the pending business before the Council was taken up—Mr. Bawserer's substitute.

By the unanimous consent of the house, Mr. Wood, of California, took the floor. He represented people from the extreme North and from the extreme South; he came here, he did, from conventions he had held with gentlemen from the extremes of the Union. He came here to represent them; he hoped he would say nothing which, if followed, would not redound to the best good of the entire country. He would assume that the Slavery question was one of great delicacy, and as a National Council it should be treated in such a manner as may derive harmony and harmony. He desired to know what gentlemen meant by the guarantees of the Constitution? If they meant in their reading of the Constitution to adopt the spirit of compromise and conciliation he would ask another question, when they said they were satisfied with the Constitution, meant that they had no desire or intention to interfere with Slavery where it then existed? (A general cry of "No, no.") He knew that they would respond thus—he knew that there was no feeling in the Council to interfere with the Constitution and rights of any portion of the Union. He then desired to ask Of whom the stand when she joined the Union; whether when she was admitted it was not in accordance with the Constitution? (A member an[illegible] that they came in under the provisions of "[illegible].") Well, he would ask whether any one ever knew any other State to be admitted on any other ground and under any other influence than was in accordance with the Constitution? He called gentlemen to another point—whether he did not state the fact. Massachusetts jumped up and said she would be pleased to reply.

Cries of "Yes" and declared her readiness and anxiety to meet the gentleman.

Other States arose and declared they were desirous of a privilege to reply.

The President trusted gentlemen would keep order and permit the gentleman from California to proceed.

Mr. Wood continued—It was the voice of his people, and it was his sole desire to express the opinion that what was right for one member of the Union was right for another. With regard to the right of Congress to interfere with the question of Slavery, he had a word to say. He desired, on that point, that there should be a plain enunciation of principle by the Council. He was opposed to striking out the Twelfth section, because he considered it constitutional, and they to strike it out would be an expression of opinion to the effect that it was unconstitutional. But, he would ask the North, if it was to be stricken out, to insert something equally satisfactory to all National men. He considered it a duty they owed to the States they represented, and it was due to justice and to the South.

Mr. Wood, of the District of Columbia, desired to present a platform which had been adopted by the Order in the District of Columbia. He read the platform, which will be found below, concluded. He thought that they would come out right after all. There were many good-natured fellows in the Council.

Mr. Stokes, of Tennessee, desired the Council to come to the rescue and be silent that they might hear. He came from a State that had always been true to the Constitution, and from a State which always would be true to the Constitution. He was pleased to hear that there was now a disposition to harmony. On the previous day he had heard the gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. Sumner) express conciliatory sentiments at the beginning of his address; but before that address was concluded he stated that, if the Twelfth section was not stricken out, the matter would not be satisfactory. The insertion of the Twelfth section might have been unwise; he did not say it was; although he would say that there were things in that resolution which he considered, had better not have been inserted. Tennessee was satisfied with the Constitution, and he respected New-England was satisfied with the Constitution. [Cries of "Yes, [illegible]

The both Houses of Congress have again adjourned over to Monday. In the Senate, yesterday, Executive documents relative to Indian affairs on the Pacific coast were received, after which various bills of no general importance were passed. The House, on the second ballot, elected as Chaplain DANIEL WALDO, a New-York Revolutionary soldier, in the ninety-second year of his age; after which the Senate's resolution for filling the vacancies in the Board of Regents of the Smithsonian Institution was adopted. Several bills were then introduced, including one for a railroad and telegraphic line to the Pacific, which was referred to a Select Committee.

The Know-Nothing National Council, which has been in Convention at Philadelphia for a few days past, adjourned yesterday, after a highly exciting session, which has been principally occupied in debate on the Slavery issue. It will be seen by a perusal of the last day's proceedings in this morning's Times, that the "old platform" of the party has been stricken out and a new one substituted. The Convention adjourned to June next, and New-York has been fixed upon as the place of meeting.

We publish this morning, a special dispatch from Pittsburg, giving an account of the movements preliminary to the opening of the Republican Convention in that city. A large number of Delegates, it will be seen, had arrived, and more were expected. It bids fair to be one of the most important Conventions ever held in the country, and the proceedings will be looked for with interest.

The Atlantic is now in her sixteenth day, and her non-arrival is beginning to cause anxious feelings. It is hoped that her detention may be in some way connected with the Pacific.

What "Law and Order" means in Kansas.

The issue in Kansas is very narrow, but very important. President PIERCE declares that the people of Kansas must be compelled to obey the laws enacted by the late pretended Legislature. "Law and order" exact this obedience, and the whole power of the Federal Government will be used to sustain "law and order." Gov. SHANNON, in his letter to the President of Nov. 26, which we published on Wednesday, speaks of the "law and order party" in opposition to the "Free-State party." It is contrary to "law and order" in Kansas for the inhabitants thereof to desire and seek to make it a Free State; and unless they can be put down in this attempt, Gov. SHANNON tells the President, "there is an end to all practical government, and it becomes a useless formality."

All the sophistry of the Administration cannot blind the eyes of the American people to the fact, that Slavery has been fastened upon the people of Kansas against their will, by an armed invasion from Missouri. The laws of the Territory were not made by the people nor by their representatives. They were made by invaders. The people of Kansas were driven from the polls; men were elected of whom they never heard; the Legislature was imposed upon them by a conspiracy as thorough and complete as any recorded in history. And this invasion was not an accident,—nor a temporary inconvenience merely, which could be remedied. It was the result of a deliberate plot, devised and carried into execution by the acting Vice-President of the United States, for the accomplishment of a deliberate and well-considered purpose. It was a step absolutely necessary to give effect and success to the repeal of the Missouri Compromise. If the people had been left free to choose their own representatives, even after that repeal, Slavery would have been prohibited in Kansas. This result was to be averted. The invasion was indispensable to the accomplishment of the object sought by the repeal.

The first act of the Legislature thus imposed upon Kansas, was to legalize Slavery there, and extend the slave laws of Missouri over the Territory. This of itself was a gross and unendurable outrage upon the rights of the inhabitants. They had gone there to live, and under the very law by which the Missouri Compromise had been superseded, they had a right to say that Slavery should not come there. But this Legislature deprived them of that right, and forced Slavery upon them. And it followed up this outrage by others still worse. It enacted a code of laws that would disgrace the statute-book of the blackest despotism on earth. Whoever entices a slave to leave his master—whoever lets or says anything that any one may deem calculated to excite an insurrection, shall suffer death. Whoever writes or publishes anything that can be construed into an excitement to slaves to run away, whoever shall express, by writing or printing, the opinion that Slavery is illegal in the Territory, or advocate any such doctrine in any shape or manner, is to be punished by imprisonment at hard labor for five years. All the rights of freedom of speech and of the press, guaranteed by the Constitution to all citizens of the United States, are denied the people of Kansas in regard to Slavery. So far from Slavery being there a thing dreaded and execrated, the law is so framed as to compel its acceptance. The law for the Territory is made to terrify the people, to intimidate them with barbed penalties if they express any sentiment against Slavery, and to compel them, in any way in and out of their country, to yield to the behests of its advocates.

There are few here who think the Federal Government says what it means when it says it. In direct hostility to the Kansas and Nebraska bill, which declares that "the people shall be left perfectly free to regulate their domestic institutions in their own way," the invaders from Missouri have been allowed to force Slavery upon them, and the Federal Government sustains the invaders against the people.

The People of Kansas have declared that they will not obey laws so outrageous in their character, so destructive of their rights and liberties and so shamefully forced upon them by an armed and alien force. There is not a man in the Union, fit for freedom, who will deny their right to take this ground. There is not a man fit to exercise the right of self-government, who will not applaud them for asserting and sustaining their rights to make their own laws. They would have been degenerate sons of Freedom if they had taken any different course. And the Federal Administration proves itself to be the meanest tool and instrument of the slaveholding interest,—dead to every principle of Republicanism, and insensible to every instinct of liberty,—when it seeks to compel their obedience to their invaders.

The President, in his Special Message, insists that the Governor of Kansas recognized the validity of these elections. He would never have been appointed had it been supposed he would do otherwise. But whatever the fact may be, it is monstrous that the rights and liberties of the people of Kansas should be torn from them by such a special plea as this. That is, indeed, disposing of the freedom of a people upon a legal technicality—trying and condemning them by a species of petifogging which would be hooted out of any respectable Court, in a case where the personal rights of a single individual were concerned. The Federal Government owes higher duties to those under its protection than that of thus entrapping them into the loss of all they hold most dear.

The People of the new Territory, few, poor and isolated as they are, have evinced a spirit of resistance to tyranny worthy the authors of the Revolution. It is impossible for any generous heart not to wish them success. The odds are fearfully against them. A horde of armed men from Missouri, invited and encouraged by the Governor, stand ready to invade the Territory and butcher all who resist the execution of the laws they have imposed upon it. The Secretary of War has ordered the Federal troops at Fort Leavenworth to aid in "suppressing insurrection," as this resistance of the sham laws of the Territory is styled, but not to repel the invasion and destruction with which the people are menaced. The chances are against the inhabitants. But we are confident they will not yield without a struggle for their rights. Nor have we any fears that the Administration, which so shamelessly betrays the cause of justice and humanity, and so openly espouses the cause of those propagandists of Slavery who have kept the country in constant turmoil for the past few years, will not incur the prompt and emphatic condemnation of the American people.

The Day.

Between the 1st of January and the 4th of July is a long stretch of time devoted to the absorbing cares of business, unrelieved by a single holiday, or even the briefest relaxation from the hardening and wearisome pursuits of our work-day world. It is too much. A holiday is needed, for recuperating indulgences; and, as a mere matter of economy, it would be desirable that a new holiday should be instituted. And there is no perod during this half year, at which a day for relaxation from labor could be so conveniently afforded as on this very day, when the rigors of Winter are passed, and we are just entering on the bustle and the engrossing business of Spring. Perhaps it is partly for these reasons that every year there is manifested an increasing desire to commemorate the birthday of the Father of his Country; and thus the patriotic inclinations of the people, combined with an instinctive desire for a day of recreation have tended to make the 22d of February a general holiday. Certainly there has never been so general a demonstration made for a due celebration of the day as on the present occasion,—not only in this City, but in every part of the country, from Texas to Maine.

Never did a nation have greater cause to rejoice on the birthday of one of its heroes, or patron saints, than we have to manifest our grateful feelings on the birthday of WASHINGTON; and it may be hailed as a favorable indication of a growing sentiment of nationality among our people that there is, at this time, so general a disposition to commemorate the day among all classes. Congress has adjourned over from Thursday until Monday, and our State Legislature has adjourned from Wednesday until Tuesday, to give their members an opportunity to join in commemorating the occasion. An unusual demonstration is to be made in Albany; Hon. EDWARD EVERETT is to deliver an oration in Boston on the character of WASHINGTON; there is to be a grand union celebration in Cincinnati; and in this City the Common Council has made a liberal appropriation for a proper observance of the day, while various Societies and Associations celebrate it by festivals, balls, orations, and military turn-outs.

The Wreck of a Steamship.

Captain BERRY, of ship Andover, at New-Orleans from New-York, reports that on the 20th January, lat. 27° 55', long. 75° 32' he "fell in with the guard and part of a wheel-house of a large steamship; passed very near, and observed that the outside of the wheel-house was painted white."

It will be remembered that, on the 8th instant, we commented on a report made by the ship Pocahontas, at Norfolk from Boston, which was, that on the 21st January in lat. 28° 58', long. 72° 10', she "saw a steamship with signal of distress, but could render no assistance owing to the wind blowing fresh from the west."

There may, possibly, be some connection between the steamship in distress seen by the Pocahontas on the 21st January, and the wreck the steamship seen by the Andover on the 20th January. If this be the case, the Pocahontas had disregarded the duties of humanity at sea, which are obligatory upon her profession, and had preserved the signal of distress, not knowing which way the wind blew—the public might be spared the anxiety, that will now be felt, to know what reasonable it is that has been wrecked at sea.

The Public Lands.

When Gen. JACKSON came to the administration of the General Government, the management of the public lands was made the subject of warm discussions and excited party controversy. The Jackson Party seemed inclined to comply with the general desire of the Western people, to reduce the price considerably below the then existing minimum—$1 25 per acre, but were cautious of assuming responsibility for that measure. At that period, and at frequent intervals since, the new States, with more or less distinctness, have asserted the doctrine, that the Federal Government ought to have no right of proprietorship in lands within their limits. But the Democratic Party in general imitated the cautious and timid policy of its leaders as to the public lands, until the recent legislation distributing the lands in donations upon various pretexts, among States, Corporations, and individuals, and graduating the rates so as to make the price for great quantities merely nominal. This policy dates from the year 1847, when the first act granting bounty lands to the soldiers of the Mexican War was passed. This act inaugurated a new era in our public land system. It was the initiative of the give-away system. So far as concerns the interests of the States, the new system may be considered as a scheme of general spoliation. We do not here propose to discuss the relative rights of the East and West in respect to the public domain. Nor do we wish to be understood as denying that the Atlantic States receive, in the general administration of National affairs, many advantages over the distant West, and the interior, which may be regarded pro tanto, as compensations for the vast concessions of public lands which are yearly made to the new States by the votes of members representing the former section. We have before us an abstract of the report of the Commissioner of the General Land Office, from which we compile facts presenting a concise view of the operations of that Department for the last year. For the purposes of comparison, we have extracted from previous reports information which will be found in the following statements.

The annexed is a summary of the operations for 1854 and 1855, furnishing a fair illustration of the give-away system:

	1854. Acres.	1855. Acres.
Sold for cash	7,965,795	15,729,524
Located with military scrip and land warrants	3,416,809	1,845,590
Swamp Lands donated to States	11,022,313	7,470,746
Donations to Roads, &c.	1,751,962	11,556
Total	23,228,313	24,857,409

The very large increase in the amount of sales for cash during 1855 over 1854 requires to be explained. The act reducing the price of lands according to the period they have been in market, to rates varying from one dollar to twelve and a half cents per acre, went into operation in July, 1854. Under that law 10,260,936 acres have been sold for the astonishing sum of $3,514,996—the average price being 32 cents per acre.

The aggregate quantity of land alienated, by sale or otherwise, during the first quarter of the present fiscal year, was 5,332,000 acres, of which 2,400,000 acres were granted in donations to States and individuals; making for the fifteen months ending Sept. 30, 1855, 29,890,079 acres.

It will be observed that during 1854, 16,233,000 acres were bestowed gratuitously against 7,035,735 acres sold; that is, two acres and one-third were given away to one acre sold. During 1855 there was some improvement, the quantity donated amounting to only 8,827,885 acres; but, as we have shown, considerably more than half the sales were for about one-fourth the usual price. The tables for the two years prove that more than 25,000,000 acres have been alienated without consideration to the general Government or to the old States, which are with the others the common owners of this property.

The grants of bounty land under the various Acts from 1837 to 1847, had amounted, up to Sept. 30, 1855, to 30,316,440 acres; of which 6,019,240 were in warrants not located and still outstanding.

But the most extraordinary part of our general give-away system is that under which the Southern and Western States have been permitted to denounce 47,849,799 acres of the public domain as "swamp lands," and to appropriate to themselves 33,685,425 acres under the same designation. The process of absorption is still going on, though it has already swallowed up a larger district of country than all the New-England States. The swamp land Acts were passed in 1849 and '50, and were extended in 1855. Under the authority of these acts some of the States have denounced as submerged, marsh or worthless lands, large quantities of the most valuable territory belonging to the Government. And to cover up and sanction this act of spoliation, Congress last year passed an Act that for all lands thus illegally denounced and claimed by the States, others of equal extent should be set off to them. Of course innumerable pretexts are brought forward for despoiling the old States of their share in the common property, and prominent among them is the assumption that the public lands are a burden upon the Government, and the proceeds of the sales do not equal the expenses of management. This allegation is totally unfounded, as is proved by the official returns. The receipts from the public lands during the two years and three months ending Sept. 30, 1855, were $22,480,000, and during the past twenty years have been over $106,000,000. The public lands have been all paid for, and in estimating their present value we are to consider, not what they have cost, but what they are yielding to the Treasury.

The total appropriations of land for the satisfaction of Virginia Military bounty warrants amount to 1,460,000.

The quantity of land surveyed, in California and ready for market, is 6,328,700 acres, but as reports of rich gold deposits exist over the greater part of the energy, the question is referred to Congress whether these lands should not be withheld under the pr[illegible] laws relative to mineral lands.

The aggregate surveys of [illegible] from Sept. 30, 1854, to Sept. [illegible] to 15,815,383 acres—less little [illegible] the quantity alienated by gra[illegible] sale.

The New Edict of the Magistrates.

An order has been issued [illegible] Office, announcing an intention of [illegible] three days' wages from the pay of [illegible] whose beat robbery or violence occurs. If Peter Smith is knocked over the head and his pockets robbed anywhere in the range assigned to the custody of Policeman X., Policeman X. must pay $5 for the misadventure. If John Brown's plate-chest is broken open, and the contents, with some thousands of dollars besides in cash and jewelry, is abstracted, Policeman Y. loses $5 under this rule. The regulation appears at the first sight a wholesome one. An appeal to dollars and cents fares always better than appeals to a sense of duty. But there is a vast disproportion between a broken head attended with a large pecuniary loss, and the forfeiture with which the watchman is threatened for permitting the assault. There is no likelihood, moreover, of the mulct being exacted; the whole history of Mayor WOOD's administration being one of multiplied rules, issued only to be disregarded and forgotten within a fortnight of their invention. We doubt, besides, whether Policemen would submit to the fine, if imposed, there certainly being no show of law, or justice, in punishing in this indiscriminate way, for acts which omnipresence, or a particularly confined beat, could alone, in very many cases, enable the officer to prevent. Nevertheless, as a recognition on the part of the Mayor that the Police of New-York is not the most efficient body of men in the world, and that they actually need stimulus to greater vigilance, the new regulation has its value. The only hope of radical change lies in a general conviction that no system can be worse than the present. When the public comes with reasonable unanimity to the point of weighing the value of the establishment against the abolition of it, we shall be within sight of better times.

We are by no means sure that the era for thus solving the problem has not already arrived. The Police Department, having attained the maximum of cost, has at the same moment reached the minimum of service. It does little or nothing for the protection of person and property. The diary of a week, clipped from the "City" department of the DAILY TIMES, is a protracted detail of plundered stores and dwellings, brutal fights, attacks upon defenceless pedestrians, and highway robberies. If to these patent offences be added the prescriptive one of street-walking, policy-dealing, and violation of ordinances by the score, not one of which obtains the interference of an officer, we shall certainly approach the conviction that we are as well off without the Police as with it. Burglars load up their wagons at the doors of warehouses into which they have forced their way, and drive off unmolested. Men are knocked down and robbed within pistol-shot of the Chief's office. Indeed, the nearer the peaceful citizen draws to that protective centre, the greater, he has learned, is his danger; and he is a bold, or an ignorant fellow, that goes unarmed through the Park late at night. Vice is so riotous on Broadway, that the sidewalks are vocal with curses and obscenity from sunset to midnight. Gambling, we are told by a high authority, is suppressed; yet policy-offices, where the poorest classes are plundered to the last rag, by the meanest and vilest of swindling, are permitted by hundreds. No attempt is made to close unlicensed rum-holes, the sources of half the unchecked wickedness of the streets, or to silence Peter Funk, whose din deafens the officer as he lounges by. What, in fact, does the Police do for the public morals or public protection? It does not protect property; there is hardly a block in the better parts of the City, where the citizens do not maintain private watchmen, as the only security against thieves. The business sections might indeed dispense with the Police altogether; as the private watch within doors and without is so ample. It fails to protect persons; it answers none of the ends of its organization; and it is to be doubted whether more mischief does not result from the existence of a corps whose inactivity serves rather to shield than to prevent or punish crime, than from every man's knowledge that he is his own Police, and must depend upon his own weapons, his bolts and locks, to defeat the ill-doers. It is seriously to be questioned whether the ends of order would not be better answered by such extension of the private police system as should cover the whole City; the owners and occupants of three or four adjoining blocks hiring a man, whose duty it should be to patrol his beat incessantly during the night, and answer to a Committee of supervision for any neglect or crime within his territory. What, with public and private Police, it costs at least a half million of dollars a year to keep up the false show of preserving property and order in the City. With a system of private Police it could be done, we suspect, at half the price, and twice as effectively. Every respectable neighborhood, with its Police thus under its own control, could and certainly would, weed out all the nests of vice, drunkenness and swindling infesting it; and thus one great reform would be effected in driving the vicious into a distinct quarter, where Justice would be able to find them. The subject is, at least, worthy of consideration in this day of City reform and Charter-hatching.

It is certainly possible by a well-ordered police force to make a city residence perfectly secure against burglars and highway robbers, at least, and to give to our streets that "sweet security," which was CHARLES LAMB's apology for preferring London to the country. It was but last week that a lady, who had been out shopping, was returning to her home in one of the up-town streets at midday, when a street fellow caught her by the arm and jerked her purse out of her hand, and ran off with his booty, though she screamed to the top of her voice for help. A little daughter of a down-town merchant was recently thus robbed by her hand in the neighborhood of Union Square, when a ruffian seized her, tore a gold chain from her neck, and snatched her books out of her hand, and succeeded in making his escape before the child's cries brought any one to her assistance. Something more than a fine of five dollars ought to be imposed for the occurrence of such acts as these on a policeman's beat.

Indian Scenes in Omaha City—The Omaha Indians Refuse to Accept the Bacon in Payment—General News, &c.

Correspondence of the New-York Daily Times.

OMAHA CITY, N. T., Tuesday, Feb. 5, 1856.

Yesterday the Omaha Indians made their appearance in town to get their flour, sugar and coffee from the hands of their Agent. About noon the scene was quite interesting, particularly so, I presume, to one who might never before have seen a gathering of an Indian tribe in their native costume. The ground was covered with snow, and they built fires around the town plat and gathered in groups around them. Many were painted and bedecked in their Indian finery, presenting a wild yet interesting appearance. One of the Chiefs we noticed particularly—his age could not have been much under 100 and yet his step was as elastic and his carriage as erect as those of a man of twenty. He recollects the celebrated explorers, LEWIS and CLARK, and bears his certificate of Chieftainship from Governor WILKINSON, of Louisiana—this country then belonged to the Territory of Louisiana. On his breast hung an old JACKSON medal, from whose hands he received it in Washington.

After the flour had been removed from the warehouse to the ground near by, for distribution, the Indians came to the conclusion (assisted, doubtless, by some interested traders) that it was "no good," and would not receive it. I must confess their self-denial under the circumstances, was commendable. Here they were in destitute circumstances, really needing the flour, yet believing they had been imposed upon by the white men attempting to furnish them an inferior article, at a price which should have furnished them good, and some of the sacks also minus in weight, they refused to touch a particle of it. It is the idea of many Indian traders and the public, that it is no harm to cheat an Indian, and we felt the rebuke upon such a time-serving policy was in good place. It is true the poor Omahas, from whom Government bought this land have been imposed upon by the trades and purchases they make with the whites, and in scarcely any respect has the spirit of their treaty been complied with, and yet we are by no means behindhand in charging the many thefts and mischief which necessity, arising oftimes therefrom, oftimes drive them to, to cheat them as much in a trade as possible. The Indian Department of our Administration, I feel convinced, needs a remodeling; it is an important item, far more so than many of our people generally think.

The cold term still continues, and the Lord only knows when we shall be blessed with a comfortable day in Nebraska. To-day it is snowing. To-night some of the settlers of this section met to remodel their claim laws. JAKE.

GAS.

The Proposed Metropolitan Gas Company.

What Gas Costs in other Cities.

A meeting of the Aldermanic Committee on Lamps and Gas was held yesterday at 2 P. M.—Mr. FOX, Chairman, and all the Committee being present. The subject under consideration being the application of the proposed Metropolitan Gas Company to lay gas pipes in the streets of the City in opposition to the two Companies already organized, and as this moreover was to be the only public meeting of the Committee before reporting there was a large attendance of parties interested, and adverse to the application in question. It will doubtless be remembered that at the previous meeting of the Committee a numerous retinue of lawyers presented themselves to argue the opposing interests involved in the matter of this application. The Committee decided to dispense with legal argument, and rest their decision upon statements of the Presidents of the Companies existing in New-York, and a few others.

REASONS WHY WE HAVE GAS COMPANIES ROUGH.

Mr. CHARLES ROOME, President of the Manhattan Gas Company, appeared in opposition to the application of the Metropolitan Gas Company. He did not believe, he said, that were the application to be granted the Company would ever lay down a single pipe. If they did lay the pipes it would occasion great interference with the use of the streets during the progress of the work. To Broadway and other streets, which have been permanently paved, the difficulty would be very great. This he urged as a very serious objection. He enumerated several disadvantages which would follow from allowing Companies to lay their mains side by side in the same streets. There would arise frequent necessity of opening the streets to make repairs which would involve connecting and disconnecting sewer-pipes, and consequent interruption to business. This breaking up of the streets would impair the durability of the pavements. Difficulty of discovering leaks in the gas-pipes would render it necessary often to open the mains of both Companies in order to discover a leak in one. Beside, unpleasant difficulties would arise between the Companies themselves, caused from accidentally or intentionally tapping each other's mains and connecting their service pipe one with the other. The earth, moreover, from increased leakages from double mains would become impregnated, thus affecting the purity of water in the water pipes, and working its way into vaults and cellars and the open air, rendering them impure. Explosions would occur from the gas being accumulated to an undue extent. He insisted in conclusion that no confidence could be placed in the expectation that, should a new Company be established, a fair competition would prevail between that and the old Companies. The end he contended would be a combination that would compel consumers to pay not only rates covering the enhanced cost of production, but to indemnify both Companies for losses during their period of active competition.

Mr. W. W. FOX, President of the New-York Gas Company, next appeared before the Committee. He opposed the application of the Metropolitan Gas Company; in the first place, he said, because its application was to lay mains within the limits granted by the Common Council to the New-York Gas Company. All the streets within this district he insisted were laid with sufficient mains to supply the citizens of New-York, and for public purposes, with whatever quantity that may be required. This Company had never failed a night in supplying gas. The Company, he thought, was entitled to the benefits that might result from the large outlay of capital. The inconveniences of a double set of mains as specified by Mr. ROOME were confirmed. In concluding, he denounced the new Company as professing more than they could accomplish.

Mr. PEARCE, a stockholder in the New-York Gas Company, followed. His statements were mainly confirmations of the statements of Messrs. ROOME and FOX.

THE OTHER SIDE.

Ex-Alderman DOWNS spoke quite at length in favor of granting the application of the Gas Company. He had occasion, he said, while in the Board of Aldermen, to examine fully the subject of Gas and Gas Companies. He felt satisfied that the formation of an efficient rival Company would tend to cheapen the price of gas. This he considered the all-important consideration. As it was, the consumers were at the mercy of the producers. He admitted the idea of consolidation, and urged that this should be prevented by legislative enactment.

Mr. CHARLES [illegible], of No. 40 Sackett-st., stated that the bill was much for debating his house was gas. He deemed this exorbitant, but he had no relief from the charges of the Company. The [illegible]

[illegible] followed by several others in favor of and in opposition to the proposed grant, but nothing was stated of material interest in addition to the previous statements.

The Committee then [illegible] approximate the following statements:

Trinity Church Rents.

To the Editor of the New-York Daily Times:

In your notice in Wednesday morning's paper of the report of the Vestry of Trinity Church to the Senate, you represent said Report as stating "The amount of annual rents on buildings to be paid, and the amount of ground rents to be paid, and the whole the total amount of annual ground rents amounts back to the first named sum, and there are no annual rents on buildings which are the property of the house." The sum you named of $1,[illegible] is the amount of ground rents, represents the present total value of the tenements of the church in the property, including the present value of the ground reserved in the leases. The error is doubtless unintentional on your part, but in view of the [illegible] notices heretofore entertained of the [illegible] wealth of Trinity Church, one that ought [illegible] to be corrected. That you will cheerfully do so, I not doubted by ONE OF THE VESTRY.

Why is it so?

To the Editor of the New-York Daily Times:

"The Commissioners for hearing certain mortgages of the United States" kept their record of mortgages in the office of the County Clerk. But why should not their mortgages be recorded, along with all others, in the books in the office of the Register?

The mortgages given to these Commissioners are a lien upon real estate, and in examining titles it is necessary to have special searches made for them at an additional expense. This relic of the old system—(which allowed notices of liens, of sundry kinds, to be filed in divers places, to the inconvenience and expense of the searchers)—should be put away.

Destructive Fire in Forsyth-street—Loss about $50,000.

A very destructive fire occurred on Wednesday evening. The loss is estimated at about $50,000. It broke out at a quarter to 10 o'clock, in the four-story brick building, Nos. 67 and 69 Forsyth-street, occupied by Hudson V. Brown, picture-frame manufacturer. The flames spread rapidly in all directions, and before extinguished, partly or wholly destroyed several buildings.

The fire started about the boiler in the sawmill of Mr. Adams.

No. 71, a two-story frame building, occupied in part by Jesse Frost, as a dwelling, was totally destroyed; insured for $800 in the Peter Cooper Insurance Company. THOMAS CREVE and MARY BARNEY also occupied apartments in No. 71; their loss is about $200.

No. 69 was also destroyed; loss $1,000.

No. 67, occupied by 8 families; loss $1,500.

A two-story brick building in the rear of Nos. 67 and 69 was totally destroyed. It was occupied by Jesse Grant, as maker; loss $800.

A building in the rear of No. 71 was partly destroyed; loss $1,000.

All the buildings in the rear were more or less damaged, and their various occupants sustained a loss of about $1,000 each.

The names of the occupants are as follows: JOHN [illegible], carver; [illegible] of cheese and scissors; CORNAN [illegible], stroll maker; MATTHEW BENTLEY, file cutter; JOHN HUSSEY, finey moulding; WILLIAM MILLER, looking glasses; G. C. GILSON, mustard grinder; J. J. SAILE & Son, lamp makers.

Mr. Brown's loss is about $20,000—partly insured.

Mr. LAMBE's loss is between $15,000 and $15,000.

Mr. [illegible]'s loss is between $2,500 and $3,000. Insured for $800 in Mr. Hart's Company.

The buildings on the opposite side of the street were several times on fire, but were saved with great exertion.

The building in which the fire originated was owned by Geo. A. Hoyt, and was valued at $20,000. [illegible] years of recent erection.

While the fire in Forsyth-street was raging, another fire broke out in the building No. 205 Front-street, but did not more than $200 damage. It was supplied by THOMAS FREEMAN, block and pump maker, and by NEWMAN & RANDALL, boat builders.

The memorial presents a statistical view of the facts, showing that the City pays nearly $300,000 annually to support schools in the State. The memorial was read and ordered to be printed, attested and forwarded to Albany.

Mr. BILLINGS presented a report from the Executive Committee on Normal Schools, recommending a change in the standard of qualification for the daily Normal School. The report elicited a long and animated discussion, at the close of which it was adopted.

A report from the Committee on Warming and Ventilation, relative to ventilating the Hall of the Board, was read and adopted.

The plans for the addition to Ward School No. 44 in the Fifth Ward, were approved.

The report of the Committee on Sites and School Houses, relative to a location for a colored school in the Twentieth Ward, was read and adopted.

The report of the Finance Committee relative to the extra work on Ward School No. 24, in Elm-street, was presented. It is strongly condemnatory of the system of bringing in extra bills for work after the contracts are fulfilled. The report recommends that a skilled mechanic estimate and statement of all repairs and alterations be made, covering every item, and leaving as far as possible, nothing to be provided for under claims for extras. The report was adopted.

A report from the Committee on Elections and Qualifications, relative to the election of John Crowe as Trustee of the Fourth Ward, was ordered to be printed, and made the special order at the next meeting.

A report from the Committee on By-Laws recommending attendance was ordered to the table to be printed.

The Board adjourned.

Boating Highway Robbery.

Three men, named Daniel O'Neil, Edward McCarty and Robert Wilson, were Wednesday brought before Justice COMMOLY, at the Tombs, charged with robbing a fellow-boatman, that on Tuesday night, about 12 o'clock, Hans Behrens, a German sailor, started from a place-house in Washington-street, where he had been spending the evening, to go to the boarding-house, a short distance off. He had proceeded but a short distance when he was passed by five men, who, on coming up to him assaulted him violently. Two of the villains held him by the arms and another by the throat, so that he could not speak, while the other two took from him his watch, pocket a silver watch valued at $12; besides cutting his vest and tore his pockets, in hopes of obtaining more booty, but in this they were disappointed. The highwaymen then released their victim and fled. Behrens followed close behind, crying "Watch," as he ran. Sergeant Allison, of the Harbor Police, and Officer Murphy, of the First Ward Police, in the chase, and succeeded after much exertion, in arresting the prisoners. Their victim identified the accused. The prisoners were committed for trial in default of $1,000 bail each.

The Gambiers Case Moved.

COURT OF GENERAL SESSIONS—Feb. 21.

Before Hon. Judge Cowen.

Yesterday the cases of William and Eden Norris, mentioned from Wednesday, were called on. Mr. Brown, their counsel, read sight affidavits from [illegible] stating to their general good character, showing that they had given up the business, and, unless their employers should, gratuitously and not under any compulsion, make some [illegible] of the nature of their establishment in a respectable business.

Common Pleas—Part I.—Nos. 74 to 99, 81, 84, 616 on Jury Calendar and 11. Part II.—Nos. 7, 16, 38 to 54, 56. By Judge without Jury in both Courts.

COURT OF COMMON PLEAS.

The Jurors have been discharged for the Term.

SUPREME COURT—GENERAL TERM—Feb. 21.

DECISIONS.

Bridges vs. Hyatt.—Report to be affirmed without costs of appeal, if plaintiff consents to deduct $50. Otherwise, new trial granted without costs of appeal.

The report is not clearly against the weight of evidence. If a builder agrees to pay $20 a day for every day's delay beyond a certain time, and the fact of the delay was occasioned by the owner, the burden of proof is on the owner, to show that the builder was really guilty of negligence in not completing in due time. Query.—Whether the owner can insist on any deduction if he was a partial causer of the delay.

A builder who has assigned his claim for work done, with a covenant that the whole is due, is a competent witness for the assignee.

Livingston vs. Banks.—Rules laid down in the opinion for assessing the plaintiff damages in an action on covenants as to a title of land, where the purchaser is evicted of part of the land.

The covenants of title, &c., being by two tenants in common, one of whom is since dead, the action may be against his executors and the survivor. The purchaser having sold one of the four lots, purchased by him with covenants of title, and one without covenants, cannot recover damages as to either of those lots; as to them, the grantees, if any one, are to recover.

Mills vs. Thorny, et al, executors.—Form of judgment to be modified, without cost of appeal to either party.

In a proceeding under the code in the nature of an action against executors, on a judgment against their testator, the judgment, no matter what the answer of the defendants may be, is not to be against them personally, or in a general form for the debt, but is to be special that the debt be levied on the property of the testater in their hands, or what may come to their hands. The judgment for the costs may be against them personally, or against their estate, as the Court may direct.

Mills vs. Thorny.—Second case. Case settled, to be added to same made on appeal.

Clarkson vs. Wells.—Judgment for defendant affirmed, with costs.

An action cannot be sustained against a Justice of the Peace merely because he has omitted to return, or certiorari, some of the evidence taken before him, when there is no proof of malice on the part of the Justice, or of injury to the plaintiff, or that the cause was ever brought to a hearing, or the certiorari, or that the omission was material to the plaintiff's success.

Murphy vs. Logan.—Report of referee affirmed, without costs of appeal.

There is some evidence to sustain the report of the referee, but it is so slight that no costs should be given on the appeal.

Geskidt vs. Wolf.—Judgment to be reduced to $400, with costs below, but no costs on the appeal, if plaintiff do not consent, new trial to be granted, without costs to either party.

Harper vs. The Mutual Insurance Company of Albany.—Judgment for plaintiffs on verdict of the Jury.

The defendants having insured against the hazard of the printing business, and it being established by the evidence that camphene is a necessary and ordinary material used in the process of printing, they are liable, notwithstanding that the use of that material may have occasioned the loss.

Thompson vs. The Eagle Life and Health Insurance Company.—Judgment for plaintiff on the verdict of the Jury.

In the absence of all fraud, and some interest being shown,—namely, that of a creditor in the life of his debtor,—the amount for which the premium was demanded and paid, must be deemed the value of the interest of the insured, as fixed by mutual agreement. Such policies of insurance are of a dangerous tendency, yet the law seems to sanction their [illegible].

T[illegible] vs. The Eighth-avenue Bank.—Judgment affirmed with costs.

The original cause of action against the Bank on their protested circulating notes, was not destroyed, but only diminished by the acceptance of a partial dividend from the Bank Department. As to the balance the defendants, by demurring, admit that it was "duly demanded," and that it has "not been paid." The legal consequence, that they are still "justly indebted to the plaintiff" as claimed on his complaint.

Quackenbush vs. Johnson.—Judgment for plaintiff affirmed with costs.

Johnson had a large interest in the business, and was to carry it on for several years in conjunction with Smith, and was to receive a large allowance "for his responsibility and attention in conducting the business," and was, therefore, in law, if not in fact, a partner as between Smith & Co., and persons dealing with them.

[illegible] vs. Burnham.—Decree of Surrogate affirmed with costs.

The mistake in the judgment docket was a mere clerical error. It stated the judgment to have been recovered in 1852, instead of 1851. In all other respects it was perfect. Such an error prejudices no one, and no one, therefore, should be allowed to avail himself of it. The date of the docket itself is admitted to have been correct.

Jewett vs. Russell, et al.—Judgment of Special Term affirmed with costs. The demand sued on belonged to the assignors of the plaintiff. The alleged payment was made with full notice to other persons not entitled to receive it. There is also a particular fitness, although it may not be a legal reason, that the avails of the error in question should go to those from whom the error came.

Fuson vs. The Eagle Life and Health Insurance Company.—Judgment for plaintiff, on the verdict of the jury, affirmed with costs.

CASES TO BE RE-ARGUED.

Carson vs. Mail and four others of the same nature.—Carsley, Sheriff vs. Hopper.—The other cases which were argued before Justice MORSE, and in which no consent that they be decided by the other two Justices, has been given, will also be re-argued.

Wright vs. Delafield—Barrien vs. Wright.—Reserved to May term.

SUPREME COURT—SPECIAL TERM, Feb. 20.

Before Hon. Justice Roosevelt.

DECISION—HABEAS CORPUS.

In re Charles L. Stephani.—In a suit pending between Edward Beck and others against Charles Stephani and others, an injunction was ordered against the defendants, which Stephani refused to obey, and the plaintiffs obtained an attachment against him for contempt. It appearing that his violation of the injunction had been of serious injury to the plaintiffs, the Court imposed a fine of $2,327 70, and committed him to the custody of the Sheriff, to be confined in the City prison until the fine should be paid. This occurred last year, and when Sheriff Orser went out of office he bequeathed the charge to his successor.

Mr. Stephani has obtained a writ of habeas corpus, and claims that he was once discharged from arrest by Mr. Orser, and for some days was at liberty, when he was re-arrested under the old warrant. This act, he claims, was illegal, and that he should, therefore, be set at liberty.

His Honor took the papers and promised to render a decision soon.

UNITED STATES MARSHAL'S OFFICE.

A POLICEMAN ARRESTED FOR STOPPING THE UNITED STATES MAIL.

A little spec of war has arisen in the City between the officials of mine Uncle Sam and the good Policemen of this municipality. The former insist that the wagons carrying mail bags to the Railroad Depôt, have the right of transit in preference to every other kind of vehicle. They demand to go ahead whether the street is passable or impassable. The "stars" say that the orders are for every carriage to take its turn, and the result is that one of the "stars" has been arrested and committed.

Terrific Explosion in Louisville—Four Persons Killed.

From the Louisville Democrat, Feb. 18.

One of the boilers of Louisville Paper Mill, located in the lower portion of this city, exploded about 7½ o'clock on Saturday morning, killing four persons and wounding two others. From the Evening Bulletin of Saturday we gather the following particulars:]

The boilers are in the rear of the mill, and covered by a shed. The due was lifted up erect and fell against one of the walls, making a large hole in it. The engine was broken to pieces. Some of the brick from the building were thrown a great distance, but did no damage.

The persons certainly killed are THOMAS GAMON, a girl named MERRON, and JOHN FRAZER, the negro fireman. Their bodies have been found. DANIEL DAILEY was missing at 11 o'clock this morning, but his body had not been found. BEN. STUMP was badly scalded, and his son had a leg broken and a gash about four inches long in the forehead.

These persons were all employed in the mill. GAMON and DAILEY had families. One was about 40 and the other was about 50 years of age. The girl MERRON was about 18. She had just come to work and stopped in front of the boiler to warm, when it burst. Her mother resides on Main-street, opposite the mill. The engineer was at breakfast, and had been absent about fifteen minutes when the explosion occurred.

We have no idea what the loss occasioned will be. It will probably be three or four thousand dollars.

FOR SALE.

FARM BARGAINS IN THE GARDEN SPOT OF THE WORLD.—THE UNDERSIGNED HAS NOW FOR SALE FOUR HUNDRED AND FIFTY THOUSAND ACRES OF FARMING LANDS, in tracts of 40 acres and upwards, on a credit of one, two, three, four and five years, with interest at the rate of six per cent. per annum.

These lands are situated in the Illinois Central Railroad Land District, and lying within a belt of country extending from Chicago, on the northern, to Cairo on the south, and from thence to Galena and Dunleith, in the northwest extreme of the State, and on all the lands lying within about ten miles on each side of the Central and branch roads now offered by him for sale. Moreover, the rapid growth of flourishing towns and villages along the line, and the great increase in population by immigration, can afford substantial and growing home-demand for every purchaser.

The soil is a dark, rich mould, from one to five feet in depth, is gently rolling and peculiarly fitted for grazing cattle and sheep, or the cultivation of wheat, Indian corn, &c.

Economy in cultivating and great productiveness are the well-known characteristics of Illinois lands. These are not temporary, to be cut down, summer grubbed, or stump picked up, as is generally the case in cultivating new lands in the other States. The first crop of Indian corn, planted on the newly broken sod, usually repays the cost of plowing and fencing.

Wheat sown on the newly-turned sod is sure to yield very largely. A man with a plow and two yoke of oxen will break one and a half to two acres per day. Contracts can be made for breaking, ready for corn or wheat, at from $3 to $4 per acre. By judicious management, the land may be plowed and sowed the first, and under a high state of cultivation the second year.

Corn, grain, cattle, etc., will be forwarded at reasonable rates to Chicago, for the Eastern market, and to Cairo for the Southern. The larger yields on the cheap lands of Illinois over the high-priced lands in the Eastern and Middle States, is known to be much more than sufficient to pay the difference of transportation to the Eastern market.

Bituminous coal is mined at several points along the Road, and is a cheap and desirable fuel. It can be delivered at several points along the Road at $1 50 to $4 per ton; wood can be had at the same rates per cord.

Those who think of settling in Iowa or Minnesota should bear in mind that lands there, of any value, along the water courses and for some miles back, have been disposed of,—that for those located in the interior, there are no conveniences for transporting the produce to market, Railroads not having been introduced there. That to send the produce of those lands one or two hundred miles by wagon to market, would cost much more than the expense of cultivating them; and hence, Government lands thus situated, at $1 25 per acre, are not so good investments as the land of this Company at the prices fixed.

The same remarks hold good in relation to the lands in Kansas and Nebraska, for other than such lands may be found nearer the navigable rivers, the distances to market is far greater, and every hundred miles the produce of those lands is carried either in wagons, or interrupted water communications, increases the expenses of transportation, which must be borne by the settlers, in the reduced price of their products; and to that extent prevents any net income from their investment of money in such investments, annually and every year reduced.

The great fertility of the lands now offered for sale by this Company, and their consequent yield over those of the Eastern and Middle States, is much more than sufficient to pay the difference in the cost of transportation, especially in view of the facilities furnished by Railroads, and others with which it connects, the operations of which are not interrupted by the low water of Summer, or the frost of Winter.

PRICE AND TERMS OF PAYMENT.

The price will vary from $5 to $20, according to location, quality, etc. Contracts for deeds may be made during the year 1856, providing the purchaser may be prepaid in two equal installments. The first to become due in two years from the date of contract, and the others annually thereafter. The last payment will become due at the end of the sixth year from the date of the contract.

INTEREST WILL BE CHARGED AT SIX PER CENT. PER ANNUM.

As a security to the performance of the contract, the first two years' interest must be paid in advance, and it must be understood that at least one-tenth of the land purchased shall yearly be brought under cultivation. Longer credits, at 8 per cent. per annum, may be negotiated by special application. Twenty per cent. from the credit price will be deducted for cash. The Company's construction bonds will be received on account.

READY FARMING FARMS MAY BE PURCHASED, WHICH CAN BE SET UP IN A FEW DAYS, CAN BE OBTAINED FROM RESPONSIBLE PERSONS.

They will be 12 feet by 20 feet, divided into one living and three bedrooms and will cost, complete, set up on ground chosen anywhere along the Road, $150 in cash, or shares of Land. Larger buildings may be contracted for at proportionate rates. The Company will forward all the materials for such buildings over their road promptly.

Special arrangements with dealers can be made to supply those with Lumber, Fencing Lumber with fencing materials, agricultural tools, and an outfit or provisions in any one city, at the lowest wholesale prices.

It is believed that the price, long credit, and low rate of interest, charged for these lands, will enable a man with a few hundred dollars in cash, and ordinary industry, to make himself independent, while the values must yearly become due. In the mean time, the rapid settlement of the country will, probably, have increased their value four or five fold. When required, an experienced person will accompany applicants, to give information and aid in selecting lands.

Circulars, containing numerous instances of successful farming, signed by respectable and well-known farmers living in the neighborhood of the Railroad lands, throughout the State—also, the cost of fencing, price of cattle, expense of harvesting, threshing, etc., by contract—or any other information—will be cheerfully given, on application, either personally or by letter. English, French or German, addressed to JOHN WILSON,
Land Commissioner of the Illinois Central R. R. Co.,
No. 93 Michigan-av., Chicago, Ill.

PRIVATE CONSULTATIONS.
DR. WATSON continues his practice on the various diseases, in without a rival, and to whom many of the most eminent men in the country have resorted for cure, cheaply mild, and do not betray the patient's secret, or expose him to detection, while in most recent cases there is a cure in twenty-four hours. Dr. WATSON desires to state that he never has been described by the advertisers of certain charlatans and has injured by frauds, and he is not responsible for conversations, in the same name as theirs is no relation to the Doctor.
W. WATSON, M. D.,
Thirty years surgeon to the Lock Hospital: Author of "The Organs and Cure," numerous plates, $1. Office No. 60 Walker-st., near Broadway.

SANDS' BOTANIC FOR SALT RHEUM.—THIS CELEBRATED EXTERNAL REMEDY For scrofula, syphilitic and cutaneous eruptions, used in conjunction with Sands' Sarsaparilla, has cured thousands of the very worst forms of these loathsome diseases and established a reputation that has raised a host of worthless imitations. The public are cautioned that the genuine article is prepared only by A. B. & D. SANDS, wholesale druggists, No. 100 Fulton-st. Sold, also, by druggists generally.

THE GREATEST MEDICAL DISCOVERY OF THE AGE.—Mr. KENNEDY, of Rochester, has discovered in one of our common native weeds, a specific for the cure of every kind of humor, from the worst scrofula down to a common pimple.
He has tried it in over 1,100 cases, and never failed, except in two cases, both thunder humor. He has now in his possession over 200 certificates of its virtue, all within the last six months.
Two bottles are warranted to cure a running sore mouth.
One to three bottles will cure the worst kind of pimples in the face.
Two to three bottles will clear the system of boils.
Two bottles are warranted to cure the worst canker in the mouth or stomach.
Three to five bottles are warranted to cure the worst case of erysipelas.
One to two bottles are warranted to cure all humor in the eyes.
Two bottles are warranted to cure running of the eyes and blotches among the hair.
Four to six bottles are warranted to cure corrupt and running ulcers.
One bottle will cure scaly eruption of the skin.
Two to three bottles are warranted to cure the worst case of ringworm.
Two to three bottles are warranted to cure the most desperate case of rheumatism.
Three to four bottles are warranted to cure the salt rheum.
Five to eight bottles will cure the worst case of scrofula.
A benefit is always experienced from the first bottle, and a perfect cure is warranted when the above quantity is taken.
Recently, I purchased over a thousand bottles of this in the vicinity of Boston. I know the effects of it in every case, to cure as water will extinguish fire, so cure will this cure humor. I have sold a bottle of it but that sold another; after a trial, it always speaks for itself. There are too many about this here that appear to me surprising—but, as I have known them to succeed in some places quite creditably, and yet its value has never been fully tested, I discovered it in 1849; second, that it should cure all kinds of humor.
In order to give some idea of the sudden rise and great popularity of the discovery, I will state that in April, 1853, I purchased for the trade, in one day. In April, 1855, I sold over a thousand bottles per day.
No chance of disappointment, as the trial costs but one dollar, and enough of it.
DIRECTIONS FOR USE.—Adults, one table spoonful per day; children over 5 years, one dessert spoonful; children from 1 to 5 years, one teaspoonful. No direction can be sensible for all constitutions, take sufficient to operate on the bowels twice a day.
Mr. KENNEDY gives personal attendance in bad cases of Scrofula.

RICORD'S PRACTICE.—The undersigned, formerly a pupil with RICORD, of Paris, and with the celebrated Surgeons of this city, Drs. CARNOCHAN and Mott, may be consulted, confidentially, in his specialty, which relates to the diseases of the sexual and urinary, at his conveniently located rooms, No. 516 Broadway, opposite the St. Nicholas Hotel, from 9 to 1 o'clock, and from 4 to 8, daily. He tenders to all afflicted positive assurance of relief, and those who have been abused by "specifics," antidotes, books, "no-mercury," and like effusions of the numerous medical charlatans of the day, may rely on having their cases treated effectually, no matter how complicated they may appear. His extended observations in the famous Hospital du Midi, in Paris, under RICORD himself, together with the many new and efficient remedies of this eminent surgeon, render failure impossible. For the information of the interested, it is proper to state that RICORD'S PRACTICE in sexual diseases—which comprehends the derangements of these organs as well—is the modern and only rational system (combining rapidity of cure with entire safety to the constitution) recognized by science, as it expressly rejects the old, empirical, some are hazardous nauseatment of such, formerly used specifics as mercury, cubebs, copaiva, &c. Recent cases cured without any delay, and the most candid information given in every instance. The subscriber's treatment of Consumption, constitutional, scrofulous, mercurial and nervous diseases, is based entirely on the modern and improved science of medicine, and has been eminently successful.
It may be mentioned, for the information of patients residing in the country or distant cities, that they can at any time consult the subscriber by letter, giving a plain statement of their case, when the necessary medicines adapted to it will be prepared and sent to them.
